NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 27 (UPI)—President Kennedy is almost ready to announce his choice of a new director of Central Intelligence, replacing Allen W. Dulles, authoritative sources said today.

The man most frequently mentioned to replace him was John A. McCone, who served from 1958 until early this year as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Sources here and in Washington cautiously conceded that the former AEC chairman, a Republican industrialist, seemed close to being named.

The President and his wife flew here from New York yesterday for a holiday at the Tuckahoe estate of Mrs. Kennedy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, on Narragansett Bay.

No sooner had a helicopter deposited the Kennedys on the lawn of the Auchincloss estate than the Newport White House erupted in a torrent of announcements and statements in the President's

But there were unmistakable signs here and in New York and Washington that Mr. McCone was under such serious consideration that his appointment might be announced today.

VISITS

Mr. McCone, altho a Republican, is highly regarded by Mr. Kennedy and his chief advisers. The former AEC chairman has seen the President several times recently. He has been a strong advocate of U. S. atomic test resumption since Russia broke the moratorium which had existed since October, 1958.

Mr. McCone, 59, a San Francisco industrialist was reported in Washington last night.

He was Under Secretary of Commerce in 1950-51 under former President Truman. During World War II, Mr. McCone ran the California Shipbuilding Corp., which produced 17 ships valued at about $100 million.
